ASSISTANT PROFESSOR in CELL BIOLOGY – TENURE TRACK

The Department of Cellular Biology at the University of Georgia invites applications for a tenure track Assistant Professor position. The candidate is expected to have an outstanding research program addressing important questions in cell biology as well as a commitment to excellence in teaching. Successful applicants will be expected to develop an extramurally-funded research program, and to teach cell biology at undergraduate and graduate levels. A Ph.D. degree is required and postdoctoral research is generally expected. A competitive package of start-up funds and salary will be offered. This search is part of the University of Georgia signature research initiative, “Inquiring and Innovating to Improve Human Health”.

For full consideration, applications should be submitted by December 31, 2016. To apply, submit a CV, a statement of teaching philosophy (1 page), a concise statement of proposed research (2 pages) and the names of 3 referees at http://facultyjobs.uga.edu/postings/XXX. Questions about the search can be sent to: cbsearch@uga.edu. Evaluation of applications will continue until the position is filled.

The Franklin College of Arts and Sciences and the University of Georgia is committed to increasing the diversity of its faculty and students, and sustaining a work and learning environment that is inclusive. Women, minorities, and people with disabilities are encouraged to apply. Georgia is well known for its quality of life both outdoor and urban (www.georgia.gov). UGA (www.uga.edu) is a land grant/sea grant institution located 75 miles northeast of Atlanta. The University of Georgia is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action employer. All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, national origin, disability, gender identity, sexual orientation or protected veteran status.