

Associate Professor, Rhetoric/Composition and Director of First-year
Composition
Department of English, University of Georgia

The Department of English at the University of Georgia invites applications for an Associate Professor of Rhetoric and Composition, eligible for tenure, who will serve as Director of the university's award-winning First-year Composition Program, beginning August 1, 2019.

As a large research institution with a two-semester first-year writing requirement, we seek applicants with both a distinguished publication and teaching record in rhetoric/composition and significant experience in writing program administration.

As a member of the Department of English faculty, the successful candidate will teach two courses a year in our undergraduate or graduate programs as per the candidate's research specialties (e.g., composition theory, the history of rhetoric, contemporary issues in rhetoric and composition) and will be expected to maintain a productive research agenda.

Additional information and applications may be filed online at UGA Jobs: <http://www.ugajobsearch.com/postings/32372>. The closing date for applications is November 10, 2018, with initial review of applications to begin on that date. The search committee chair is Dr. Adam Parkes: he can be reached at aparkes@uga.edu.

The University of Georgia is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action employer. All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, national origin, ethnicity, age, genetic information, disability, gender identity, sexual orientation, or protected veteran status. Persons needing accommodations or assistance with the accessibility of materials related to this search are encouraged to contact Central HR (hrweb@uga.edu). Please do not contact the department or search committee with such requests.