

The Department of History at the University of Georgia invites applications from senior scholars to fill the Carl and Sally Gable Distinguished Chair in Southern Colonial History beginning in August 2019. We seek an established scholar with an outstanding record of research and teaching. The search committee welcomes applicants who study the American Colonial South through 1825, defined broadly, both geographically and thematically. Candidates who work on the African Diaspora, Native Americans, borderlands, the southern colonies in relation to the Caribbean, gender, or other fields are encouraged to apply. The successful candidate will be expected to teach undergraduate and graduate students. The salary for this tenured position is competitive and the position carries with it a generous research support account and graduate student support. A PhD is required in history or a related field. To be eligible for tenure on appointment, candidates must be appointed a full professor, have been tenured at a prior institution, and bring demonstrably national reputation to the institution. Candidates must be approved for tenure upon appointment before hire.

Applications should include a cover letter describing the candidate's teaching and research interests and a current vita. Letters of recommendation for shortlisted candidates will be requested at a later date. Applications should be submitted at <http://ugajobsearch.com/postings/32303>. Review of applications will begin on December 15 and continue until the position is filled. Inquiries should be addressed to Cindy Hahamovitch, Search Committee Chair, at cxhaha@uga.edu.
