

ASSISTANT PROFESSOR, PSYCHOLOGY

The Department of Psychology at the University of Georgia (www.uga.edu/psychology) is seeking to fill a tenure-track Assistant Professor position beginning no later than Fall, 2019. The successful candidate will have a Ph.D. in Psychology and whose research expertise lies in the area of Diversity Science, broadly construed. Diversity Science includes but is not limited to person perception, stereotyping and prejudice, cross-cultural differences in psychological phenomena, diversity in the workplace, neural mechanisms of race perception, or research that centers on the lived experiences of underrepresented groups (e.g. women, people of color, LGBTQ people) across contexts.

Candidates for this position will be expected to actively seek extramural funding (e.g. K awards; R21s, R01s). The department is dedicated to provide resources and assistance in the grant submission process. Candidates will be expected to contribute to the teaching needs of the department at the graduate and undergraduate level, particularly in areas of cultural diversity and relevant advanced methodologies. Candidates could affiliate with one or more of our department's core training areas: Behavioral and Brain Sciences, Industrial/Organization Psychology, and Clinical Psychology.

The Department of Psychology has approximately 40 faculty members, 100 doctoral students, and approximately 1500 undergraduate Psychology majors. Successful applicants will join a nationally prominent and productive research faculty and department interested in promoting the careers of junior faculty. Collaboration with faculty across the department and the University is encouraged. Established collaborative associations with the Owens Institute for Behavioral Research, the Center for Family Research, the Institute of Gerontology, the Bioimaging Research Center, the Biomedical and Health Sciences Institute, the College of Public Health, the UGA/Augusta University Medical Partnership, and the Clinical and Translational Research Unit offer excellent research development opportunities.

Athens, Georgia is well known for its quality of life, with easy access to both outdoor and urban activities (exploregeorgia.org). UGA is a land and sea grant institution located in Athens, 75 miles northeast of Atlanta, the state capital (www.visitathensga.com; www.uga.edu).

The Franklin College of Arts and Sciences, its many units, and the University of Georgia are committed to increasing the diversity of its faculty and students, and sustaining a work and learning environment that is inclusive. Women, minorities and people with disabilities are encouraged to apply. The University of Georgia is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action employer. All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, national origin, ethnicity, age, genetic information, disability, gender identity, sexual orientation or protected veteran status. Persons needing accommodations or assistance with the accessibility of materials related to this search are encouraged to contact Central HR (hrweb@uga.edu). Please do not contact the department or search committee with such requests.

Candidates should apply at <https://www.ugajobsearch.com> and include a curriculum vitae, statements of research and teaching interests, representative publications, and should have three letters of reference submitted at the same website. Review of applications will begin on September 15, 2018 and continue until the position is filled. Applications received by October 15, 2018 are assured full consideration.